Course Description

This symposium is designed for all personnel who are involved in or planning to be involved in clinical research. The pursuit of excellence in clinical research will be presented from the perspective of each of the major clinical research stakeholders. This conference is targeted for both new and experienced clinical research professionals including research nurses, clinical research coordinators, investigators, site managers, IRB members and Pharmaceutical & Medical Device representatives.

Course Objectives

- Attendees will gain a clearer understanding of the ethical principles in biomedical research and the context for the development of research ethics at the international and local level.
- Attendees will be able to describe key concepts and competencies needed to conduct ethical and responsible research.
- Attendees will achieve insights on the roles of the research players, how these roles are interconnected, and how both study participants and ultimately patients are benefited by their actions.
- Attendees will increase their ability to assess protocols and informed consent statements in order to anticipate and prepare for ethical challenges

Accreditation

The Association of Clinical Research Professionals (ACRP) provides 6.75 continuing education credits for the completion of this educational activity. These credits can be used to meet the certification maintenance requirement. (ACRP-2011-CPT-736)
